

Tucker Named North Madison Assistant Principal

Scott Tucker has been named by the Mooresville Schools Board of Trustees as the new Assistant Principal for North Madison Elementary.

“Scott is an excellent addition to our team!” said Assistant Superintendent Holly Frye. “He brings valuable experience as an assistant principal and teacher to our new North Madison administrative team. We look forward to having him work with our staff and students.”

Tucker is in his nineteenth year of education and most recently served as a Project Lead the Way Teacher at Paul Hadley Middle School. He previously served for more than five years as the Dean of Students/Assistant Principal at Monrovia Middle School. Tucker’s teaching career includes working as second and fourth grade teacher at Monrovia Elementary School as well as a sixth grade teacher at Monrovia Middle School.

This is the first year for a full-time assistant principal position at North Madison Elementary.

“I’m extremely excited to join the fantastic administrative team at Mooresville Schools,” said Tucker. “I cannot wait to meet our families and work with our teachers in the upcoming days to ensure we have a fantastic start to the school year.”

Tucker graduated from Purdue University with his Bachelor’s Degree in Education and earned his Master’s Degree from WGU. He and his wife, Michelle, have two children.
